Sam Calvin was among the departures last night.

A fire in an Omaha insane asylum burned nine of the inmates to death yesterday.

The APPEAL was in error in stating that Miss Conlan was visiting Miss Guinan; it is Miss Kate Thomas.

Mrs. Letorneau left Tuesday evening for Suisun, on a visit to her brother Oliver. From there she will go to the Midwinter Fair.

An unknown murderer fatally wounded Frank Meagher at Petaluma yesterday and killed his wife, who was totally blind. There is no clue.

Marchie Kelly swore out a warrant against C. Graft yesterday for assault and battery. Graft will be tried by a jury at 10 o'clock this morning in the Justice Court.

The news dealers here have no Midwinter Appeals for sale this week as the San Francisco edition was entirely exhausted on Sunday, all the copies being sold at the '49 Camp.

There will be a German service given again on Monday Jan. 29 at 7:30 p. m. in the South Ward school house by Rev. J. Becker of Carson Valley. All Germans are cordially invited.

The Carson Chinamen are getting in line on the Geary Act, and are having their pictures taken as required by law. Marston has photographed nearly a hundred in the last two days.

George Bryson killed a wild cat near the flume the other night with a shot gun. It was very large and fat and George intends having the skin dressed and properly tanned. He will have souvenir watch charms made of the claws for distribution among his friends, to accompany a small pamphlet, entitled, "How I Killed a Monster Wild-Cat," with illustrations.

Panic in Carson.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 14—At the fireman's banquet last night a terrible panic was created by one Phil Doyle, and eight people were injured severely, three perhaps fatally.

The festivities were going on exceptionally smooth until the master of the ceremonies arose amid the silence of respect for him and addressed the jakes as follows:

"Brothers and defenders of the people: I now arise to prepare the way for an address by one of the most eloquent and masterful orators living. I will now introduce to you the Honorable Phil Doyle."

As the modest Doyle stepped to the front there was a silence in which the checks on his shirt could be heard clanking together.

Suddenly a howl went up and the entire crowd started for the street, piling over each other in mad profusion and fighting a way towards the windows and doors. Most of the fireman who were on to Doyle had escaped the torture so frequently suffered before and left the maimed and mangled on the floor. Doyle, who was never yet shut off on a speech, dragged the wounded back to their chairs and delivered his address anyhow. Four of his audience fainted away, but Doyle only shot a dose of seltzer in their faces and continued without interruption.

At a late hour George Bryson and John Trapp went back to the hall, looked in and found Doyle still laying down an address of welcome to his speechless listeners. Doyle holds the fort and no one dares to enter for fear he will prolong the address. Men are stationed at different entrances waiting for him to stop long enough for some one to invite the speaker to come out and drink.—'49 Journal.

"John" Speaks.

[The Chinese are not registering.—The Universal Report.]

I'm John,
 John the Chinese,
 Mongolian John,
 With tail of hair and rags
 Upon my head,
 And shirt that I forget
 To tuck within
 My panties,
 My flowing pants,
 On which folks look
 And wonder if I'm "he" or "she" or "it."

Then say,
 "I give 'it' up."
 Oh, yes, I'm John,
 You sabe,
 Who but last week
 Did take your shirt
 To wash,
 And sent it home
 With frills about the neck
 And too much fullness
 Where no fullness is
 On you;
 And when you asked me why
 In helen blazes
 I did this thing,
 I said:
 "What foh? One dollar; sabe?"
 And you rose
 And tore your hair,
 And said:
 "Blumbast a blinged Chinee! !

What foh?
 Diam Gleary law!
 No good.
 McCleary law
 No good;
 No sabe register!
 Me no legister,

Romantic.

Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Small, of Douglas County were divorced. Later they became reconciled and Mrs. Small consented, without the ceremony of a marriage, to live with Small and take care of the children. Everything ran smoothly until one Jack Smith came upon the scene and won the affections of Mrs. Small. Smith and the woman came to Carson Tuesday night and were married by the Justice of the Peace.

Yesterday Mr. Small came down to Carson in search of the truants. He endeavored to get a warrant out against Smith for stealing the horses and buckboard. This he could not secure as the offense was committed in Douglas county.

In the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Smith had started for Genoa with the horses and buckboard. Small started after them on a horse, catching up with them at the flume, South of town. He threatened to shoot Smith with a rifle he had with him, but Smith jumped out and got behind a wagon, containing other people. Small not caring to run the risk of killing the wrong man, rode off to Genoa, swearing vengeance.

Smith and his wife then drove back to Carson where Smith swore a warrant against Small for threatening to shoot him. When he arrived here, the outfit was attached by E. B. Rail for money due him from Small. The woman claims the horses, but admits Small owns the wagons.

COAST NEWS.

San Jose is putting the unemployed at work on the streets.

Pasadena negroes recently publicly debated the Hawaiian question to a crowded house.

Salem, Or., has a club of women who have adopted "rainy-day" skirts and other dress reforms.

The recent storms played havoc with Indian settlements at North Vancouver island. Indian cabins were swept away and many Indians are homeless.

The report of the expert who examined the affairs of the wrecked Santa Clara bank places the joint defalcation and debt of Leonard and Howard at $67,977 55.

Great damage from the rain has occurred at Bolinas. Several houses were wrecked by a landslide. There were a number of landslides and bridges swept away between San Rafael and Bolinas.

The new Whatcom, Wash., soup-kitchen is now in operation, and on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday of each week soup is furnished to families who send for it. No soup is served in the house.

Lottie Collins, the actress, accompanied by her sister, while out fishing on the bay at Tacoma, hooked a large salmon, and while attempting to land it upset the boat. Two men in a boat near by rescued the women.

Counsel for William Evans, the man charged with the shooting of Express Messenger Tovey in June last, on the second trial, which began at Jackson, Amador county, Monday, filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus, claiming Evans insane and an escape from Stockton. The case will be heard on the 10th of February.

Peter F. Sparkman, the thief who shot Officer Collins at Riverside, and upon whose trail bloodhounds were placed, and succeeded in tracking him to his deserted home, returned to Riverside. An officer went to arrest him and after an exchange of shots Sparkman placed his pistol to his head and killed himself. Much stolen property was found at his house.

A Vessel Wrecked.

New York, January 24.—The steamship Normannia, which sailed from this port on Thursday for Naples and Genoa, returned to-day disabled. On Saturday she encountered a gale, and was struck by a big wave on Saturday night, which smashed the foredeck-house, flooded the saloon, wrecked the fittings and caused a panic among her 125 saloon passengers. They rushed out of their staterooms in their night clothes, only to find themselves up to their necks in water, which half-filled the ship. The staterooms were flooded, as was also the main saloon.

The ship was stopped and all the interior fittings were found to be ruined. The damage to the ship and cargo was estimated at $1,000,000, and the captain decided to return.

Seven of the crew of the steamer were injured, including the second officer, by being struck by the wreckage carried by the waves. None of the passengers were hurt.
